IDAHO IRRIGATION PROJECT TROUBLE

Promoters of King Hill Extension Make Charges of Conspiracy.

BOISE BANK TO PAY IN FULL

Peace Day to be Observed in Gem State-Development Congress Brings Sessions to Close.

(Special Correspondence.) OISE, May 6.—The Medbury Irrigation project which Gaylord W. Thompson, the Lewiston bankerpolitician, is promoting and known as the King Hill Extension, is involved in a bitter fight between the officers of the original Medbury Valley Development association and the next parties in interest.

Members of the executive committee of the old concern were charged by L. G. Bradley with conspiracy to blackmail, at a recent meeting of members of the district, and a counter charge of graft was made by the accused. It is said $50,000 was the alleged price of peace between the warring parties as asked for by Karl H. S. Hougen and B. F. Griffith of Mountainhome, who also charge Thompson and his associates, it is reported, with attempting to graft in seeking to have the price of water under the segregation raised from $50 to $60 per acre. 'An application to raise the price of water to this latter figure has been presented to the state land board, but no action on the same has yet been

BANK WILL PAY IN FULL.

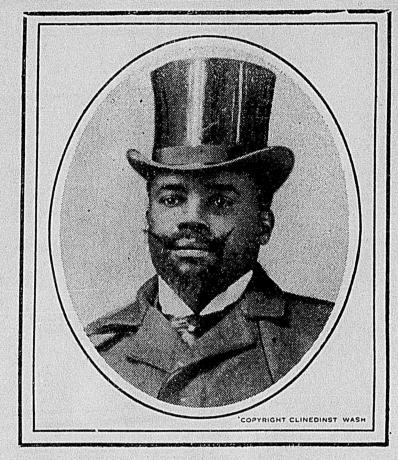

According to the report of a recent conference between Judge Wool and Receiver Meholin of the defunct Capitol State bank, all depositors of that oncesolid banking institution will toon be paid in full-dollar for dollar, which, it is thought, can be done within the next three months.

Up to the present time 60 per cent of all the deposits has been paid, and Judge Wood stated that the resources of the bank are now in such a condition as to permit of a complete settlement of all accounts within a very short time, except as to capital stock. MUNICIPAL DEPOSITORY LAW.

Boise will soon have in operation a municipal depository law, under which city funds will be deposited in bank-ing institutions at an established rate of interest. The interest proposed is 3 per cent, which would not to the city on surplus funds over $1.500 per annum. This action by the city council was brought about through a recent inquiry into the way the funds of the city were handled, which revealed the fact that certain banks have been having the free use of the city's money, in the first of March, as provided for in the measure itself. and in one instance it was brought out that the city treasurer was paid $190 a month by a particular bank for the use of the city's funds. The city attor-ney is now drafting the new depository which will be presented to the board at its next meeting.

Water masters of irrigation districts will not be elected this year, as provided by an act of the last session of the legislature; but are to be appointed by the water commissioners of the First, Second and Third divisions. This provided for in the measure itself. NEW NEWSPAPER VENTURE, THE IDAHOAN REVIVED

OISE is the home of another publication, the Idahoan, of which Truxton Talbot and J. D. Flenner are editors. The first number appeared Saturday with the following foreword:

"It has seemed good to us to launch a new periodical on the sea of journalism. Its name is The Idahoan. The editor hereof has had a cosmic urge for this name ever since he wrote his first article for an Idaho publication of the same name, in the month of July, 1877, for his old-time friend, Jud Boyakin, who was publishing a weekly paper by that name in this city at that time.

"The product of the brain and heart of that Nestor of Idaho newspaperdom ceased under that name to be succeeded by a publication called the Idaho Democrat, edited and published also by Mr. Boyakin, and the mossy marbles have for about a decade pressed the lips of that able and fearless defender of human rights; but the memory of that name, The Idahoan, survives the ravages of years and is destined to appear again on the rolls.

"The Idahoan, under its present management, aims to reflect in a large way the spirit and interests of Idaho, of Boise and the west. It aims to conserve business, social, and progressive ends. It will be independent in all things and neutral in nothing. Its chlef mission will be to boost, not to knock. In its pages from week to week will be found matter concerning the progress of our great state, its opportunities for investment, its irrigation and other enterprises, that Boise and Idaho people can send back to their eastern friends, in the sure expectation that they will be helpful in inducing emigration and terprises, that Boise and Idaho people can send back to their eastern friends, in the sure expectation that they will be helpful in inducing emigration and investment here.

"Business men will find in The Idahoan a most effective medium of reaching the people as it will be read and placed on the parlor table while ordinary newspapers are thrown into the waste basket. Its editorials will be a reflex of the doings and work of the world, with comment thereon, and a discussion of those local issues that seem to demand special attention. Of The Idahoan, as of man, it may be truly said, 'It doth not yet appear what it will be.' Given a liberal advertising and reading patronage, its publisher will labor night and day to make it the best weekly publication in the west, and its readers may be assured it will be a live wire."
